The Salvation Army Kroc Center - San Francisco Announces Temporary Closure

The Salvation Army Kroc Center - San Francisco will be temporarily closing to support San Francisco's effort to contain the spread of COVID-19. This closure includes the cancellation of all classes, events and activities planned for March 17th through April 7th.

In accordance with local guidelines, The Salvation Army Kroc Center in San Francisco hopes to reopen to the public on April 8th, pending approval by local authorities.

“The safety and well-being of our members, guests, and staff are always our highest priority,” said The Salvation Army Officer, Major Raymond Erickson-King. “Over the last weeks, we’ve been closely monitoring the situation, implementing preventative measures, and preparing for all contingencies. We will be following all state and local regulations and look forward to welcoming our community back very soon.”

The Salvation Army Kroc Center - San Francisco may be unable to check voicemails regularly due to the closure, but members and guests can contact info@krocsf.org with any questions or requests and can call 415.345.3400 during regular business hours once The Salvation Army Kroc Center – San Francisco reopens. Further information about rescheduling any cancelled classes and programs as well as other topics will be forthcoming.

Upon reopening, The Salvation Army Kroc Center - San Francisco will continue to follow protocols recommended by the CDC, including frequent, increased cleaning and sanitizing procedures using products that are rated as effective in working against COVID-19.

About The Salvation Army

The Salvation Army, an evangelical part of the universal Christian church established in London in 1865, has been supporting those in need in His name without discrimination for 130 years in the United States. Nearly 30 million Americans receive assistance from The Salvation Army each year through the broadest array of social services that range from providing food for the hungry, relief for disaster victims, assistance for the disabled, outreach to the elderly and ill, clothing and shelter to the homeless and opportunities for underprivileged children. 82 cents of every dollar The Salvation Army spends is used to support those services in 5,000 communities nationwide.
